ALEX AND THE DINOSAUR

KEKA COLMENERO

We value friendship and respect for difference.

Alex was trying to build a tower. He loved playing with building blocks and wanted to build the highest tower in the world.

He tried several times, but the tower kept falling down. He couldn't do it alone, so he went to the dining room to ask for help. Everybody was very busy.

Daddy was working. Mummy was looking after the twin sisters, who were too young to help him build his tower. The only one left was Rufo, the family dog, who spent all day watching television.

Sadly, Alex went back to his bedroom.
"I need help! Who can help me?" he cried out.

He was almost crying, when he suddenly heard a noise. Thump, thump, thump. "What was that noise?"

There was something in his bedroom!

Since he was very brave, he decided to go and explore.

He looked under his bed.

"Is there anybody there?"

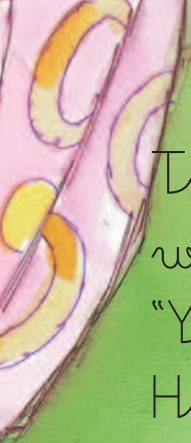

Suddenly the noise was closer.

There was somebody inside his wardrobe! Thump, thump, thump.

He opened the door and...

There was a dinosaur inside his wardrobe! He was a bit strange and he was eating...

"You're eating my chocolate!" Alex said.

His mouth and hands were covered in chocolate. He had almost finished it all.

"I'm sorry. I can't help it. When I see chocolate I need to eat it."

Alex, surprised, looked at him. It had taken him just two seconds to eat most of it. He gave him a wipe to get cleaned and he asked:

"Who are you? Where do you come from?"

"I'm a dinosaur and I come from Dinosaur Land. There we don't have this delicious chocolate."

"Yes, I see you like it very much. But can't you eat without getting all dirty?"
