ALEX AND PANCCHO GO ON AN EXCURSION

We value showing respect for nature.

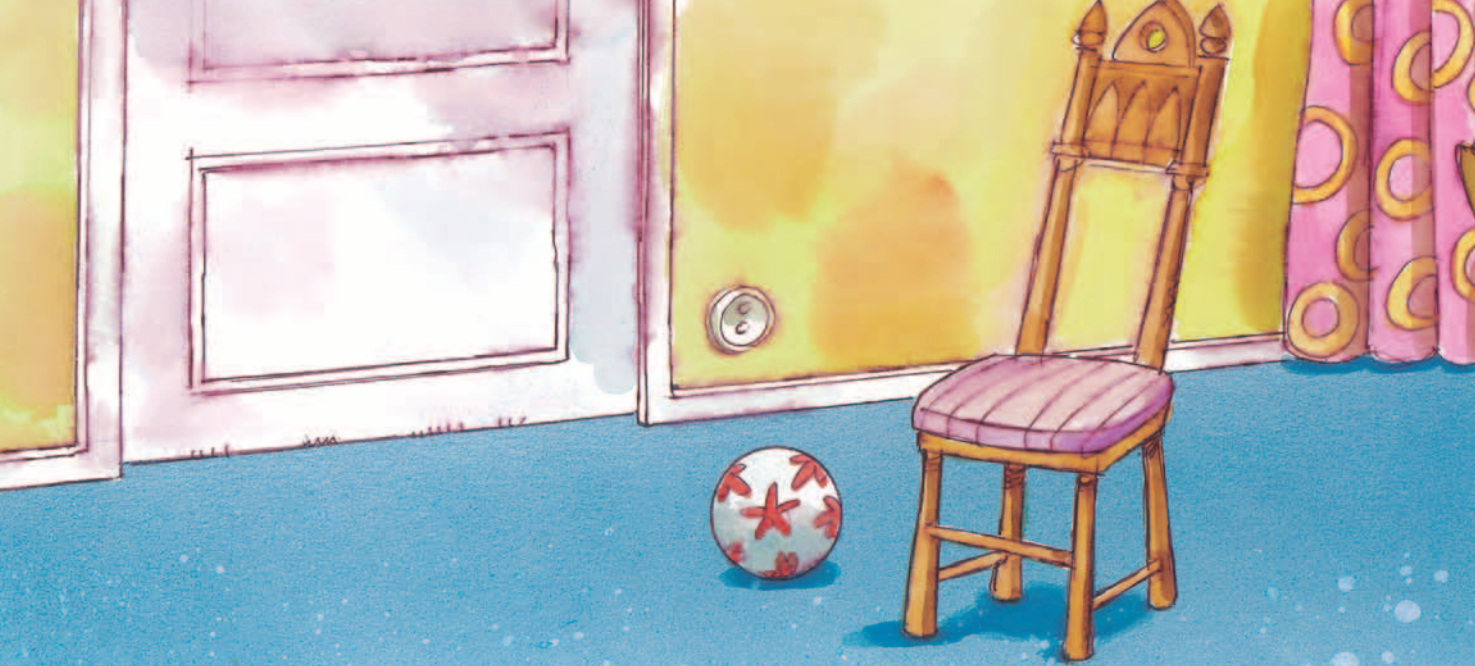

Alex is going on an excursion to the countryside with his class and Pancho wants to come along. "If you want to come with me, you need to get your bag ready."

Alex told Pancho

“Where are we going?”

“We’re going to the countryside. The teacher wants to show us about nature.”

Alex and Pancho got their bags ready.

“But, Pancho! Where are you going with the console? With that you won’t enjoy nature.

There we can play many games in the trees.”

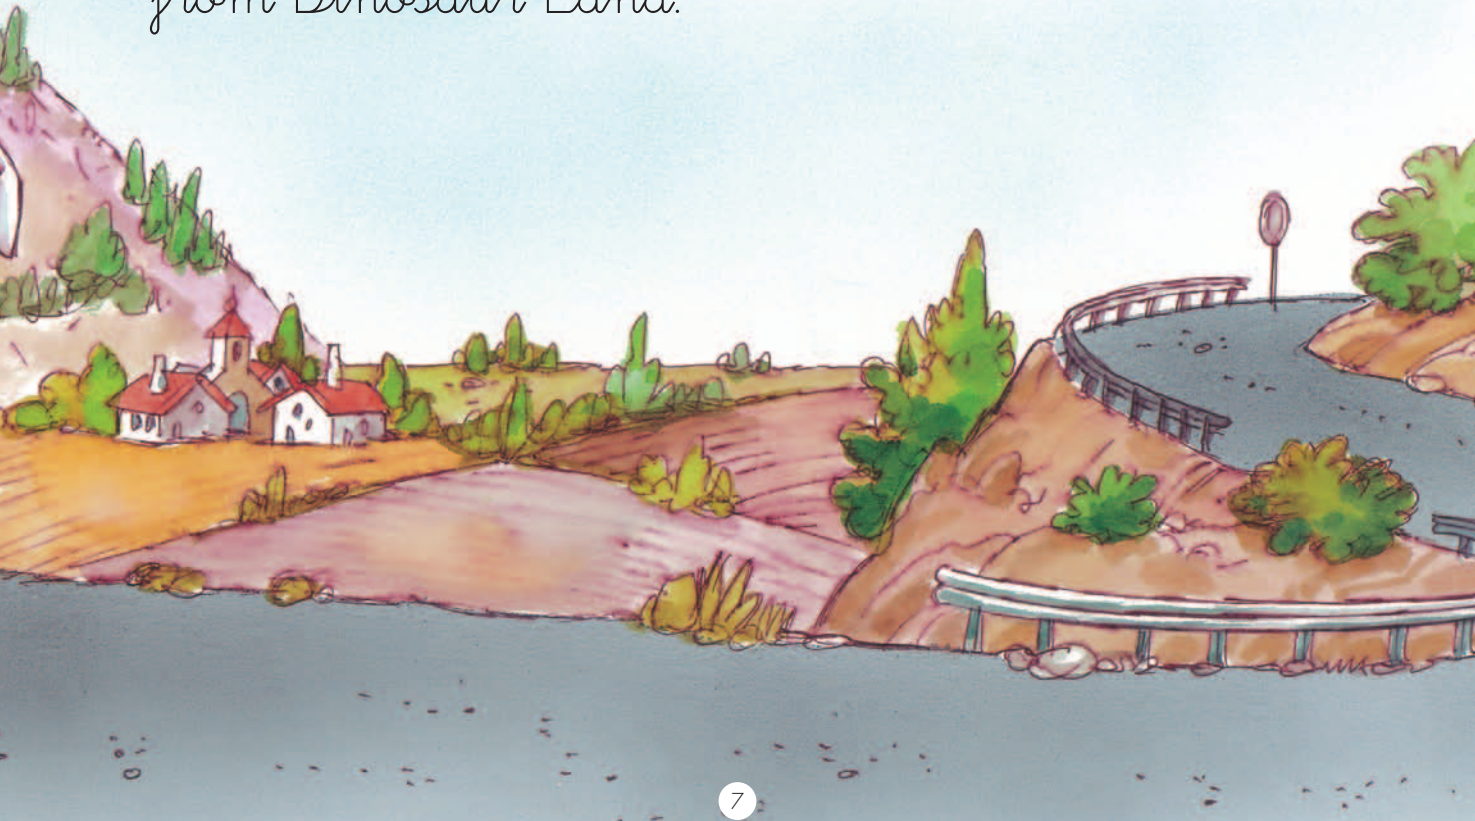

“Then, what do we need?”

“A canteen, some fruit and a sandwich.” Alex answered.

They all got on the bus happily.
“Hi Pancho!” all the children said. “How nice that you’re coming along on the excursion.”
They all sang songs on their way to the countryside while they enjoyed looking at landscape. Pancho taught the children songs from Dinosaur Land.

When they arrived, they went for a walk in the countryside to learn about the trees and the flowers.

"This is a chestnut tree. It has chestnuts, but they are all very high up," the teacher said trying to get one.

Without the teacher noticing, Pancho asked the tree for permission to get some chestnuts. He then grabbed on with his tail and shook it very carefully.

Boing, boing, boing, down came the chestnuts.
